SECTION A

Items in Section A are compulsory.

Item 1

Your community has experienced an influx of people from different regions due to the establishment of a new trading centre. The original inhabitants are concerned that their traditional customs, language, and social structures are being eroded. Some have formed groups to discourage newcomers from settling in the area, leading to tension and occasional conflicts.

The local council has organized a community dialogue to address these issues and promote peaceful coexistence. You have been requested to prepare information that will be used to educate the community members.

Task:

Prepare a detailed document explaining:

- a) The benefits of having people from different cultural backgrounds in the community.
- b) Why community members should respect and appreciate each other's cultural practices.

Item 2

The period between 1939 and 1945 witnessed the Second World War, a global conflict that involved many nations. East African countries participated on the side of the British. Some historians argue that this war was crucial in accelerating the decolonization process in East Africa. They claim that without the war, East African countries might have remained under colonial rule for much longer.

However, many young people in your community find these arguments confusing and doubtful. They have asked you to help them understand the connection between the war and the independence of East African countries.

Task:

Write an essay explaining:

- a) How the Second World War contributed to the independence of East African countries.
- b) The various methods and strategies used by East Africans to achieve independence.

SECTION B

Choose one item from Section B.

Item 3

Uganda is a multi-party state with several political parties such as the National Resistance Movement (NRM), National Unity Platform (NUP), Democratic Party (DP), and Justice Forum (JEEMA). Despite the existence of these parties, a significant number of Ugandans above 18 years have not registered as members of any political party. They claim that they do not understand the purpose of political parties and therefore do not participate in national elections or national affairs.

The Electoral Commission has launched a civic education campaign to increase political participation and patriotism among citizens. You have been invited to contribute to this campaign.

Task:

Organize information to educate the public about:

- a) The roles and importance of political parties in Uganda.
- b) Why it is important for every citizen to love and serve their country.

Item 4

Since independence, African countries have continued to experience indirect foreign influence through economic, political, and cultural means. This phenomenon, known as neo-colonialism, has limited the full sovereignty of African states. In response, East African countries revived the East African Community (EAC) in 1999 after its collapse in 1977.

However, many citizens in the region remain unaware of the achievements of the EAC and believe it is a failed organization. Some community leaders have decided to organize a sensitization programme to educate the public about the EAC and how it can help fight neo-colonialism.

Task:

Prepare information that can be used during the sensitization programme on:

- a) The achievements of the East African Community since its re-establishment in 1999.
- b) The steps that the EAC and its member states can take to overcome neo-colonialism.
